EURO-COMPOSITES S.A. has successfully completed the pre-audit of the IRIS certification for the category "Interior" in March. With the certification to ISO 9001, AS 9100, Nadcap or the approval to DIN 6701 and many other customer-specific certifications EURO-COMPOSITES has developed during 25 years a comprehensive quality management system and is continually improving to provide its clients with excellent product quality.

IRIS means „International Railway Industry Standard". It is a globally recognized standard for the evaluation of management systems in the rail sector. Although the IRIS standard specifically addresses the demands in the railway industry, this certification will bring benefits to all customers of EURO-COMPOSITES.

As each new set of standards, the IRIS certification is a challenge that is taken very seriously by EURO-COMPOSITES. Therefore this pre-audit, as a preparation for the entire company to be optimally aligned for the system audit in June.

The IRIS certification is more than just an inspection. The consequences of the IRIS standards are much broader than for example the ISO 9001 standard. They require intensive involvement of the customer throughout the project duration, from application to project management in the development phase and the configuration management in production to installation and customer support. Thus, EURO-COMPOSITES includes specific customer needs in the operating and communication process to ensure optimal co-operation

The will of EC to achieve this certificate clearly shows the efforts of the company for more intensive and long lasting partnership with its customers to be the constant stock of the business.
